NEW GAS WELLS

Mr. Tague, Manager, Received Notification Of Plans Determined To Drill New Wells In Cloverport At Once.

Jas. Tague, manager of the Ohio River Gas and Oil Company, has received information that tools for drilling two new gas wells in Cloverport have been shipped from Charleston, W. Va. They will probably arrive here this week and work will begin at once. Mr. Pugh, of Charleston, W. Va., has the contract and will be here next week with three assistants. One well will be drilled in Skillman's grove, and the other has not been definitely located.

Mr. Tague is very confident of success in the new plans and work for more gas which will be welcomed by Cloverport. He has given satisfactory service with the material he has had and his friends are pleased to know that the new wells will be under his direction and give him opportunity to furnish the town the best gas service possible.

Gas is a luxury and convenience that everybody wants—especially the women who have to clean lamps and pack in coal themselves.

Wm. Holan has moved on Geo. Cox's property near Mystic, we wish him success in his new home.

Old Folks at the Game.

Then, too, there are the older people.

After all, the most interesting thing about a Yale-Harvard football game crowd is not the pretty girls and the snappy, clean-cut boys who squire them. It's the old chaps, gray and wrinkled maybe, and a bit worn by line bucking of a kind they don't experience at college; but still game and ready as ever to sit for hours on the hard bleachers and thrill from crown to toe every time the old team charges, and shiver with apprehension when the line bends and breaks and the hostile backs crash through. And, of course, there are accompanying the older men certain persons, who—well, who have seen more games than Miss Debutante, with her bunch of violets or American beauties, and who are just as competent to discern whether a play is inside of tackle.—New York Evening Post.

Most Powerful Locomotive.

Locomotives just built for the Virginian railway are claimed to be the most powerful in the world. The locomotive and tender weigh 752,000 pounds, the fire box is large enough to hold a donkey switching engine, and the weight on the sixteen driving wheels is estimated to be 479,200 pounds. It is estimated that these locomotives will haul 155 loaded 50-ton freight cars at 10 miles an hour.

Man's Dual Nature.

The professional mind for all its acuteness is liable to occasional lapses, like less highly trained intellects. One amusing case in point is reported in the Philadelphia Public Ledger:

A certain professor was struggling to make the point that both parents have an equal influence upon a child. "For," he continued, gravely, "a man is as much the son of his father as he is the daughter of his mother."
